PICKED UP ON THE STREET

Mrs. J. Christensen left on Friday night's train for Vancouver.

Miss E. Downey of High River spent the week end in town visiting her young friends.

During the past week or so all of the local gardeners have been busy harvesting their potatoes, as all are aware a heavy frost or snowstorm often occurs shortly after October 1.

In 1941 Canada will be producing explosives at annual rate more than twice as great as the entire production of this country in the Great War.

Bob Taylor and Eugene Lester of Camp Shilo Man, spent several days last week visiting relatives and friends. They belong to the 22nd Battery and while here were looking for several recruits as there were vacancies in the battery. In town they were entertained by their friends. The boys left Saturday night for the camp and expect to proceed from there to the eastern seaboard soon.

The acreage sown to minor crops in Alberta in 1940 is 591,600 acres, compared with 573,900 in 1939. The largest increase occurred in broom corn, which jumped from 170,800 in 1939 to 191,400 in 1940. Increases were also registered in alfalfa, sweet corn, mixed grain and sorghum, but a decrease occurred in corn, sweet clover and timothy.

The announcement of the death of W. R. Treend of Hussar, was a surprise to Gleichien old timers. Up till about 20 years ago Mr. Treend did all his business in Gleichien consequently was well known to the old generation. For years he ran a large number of cattle on the range in the area around Hussar, but with the coming of the railway and the settling up of that district caused the abandonment of cattle-ranching owing to the decreased range.

Through the National Research Council at Ottawa, Canada is carrying a large share of the Empire's scientific war against Fascist powers. This work has been aided by donations from patriotic individuals and firms, which total about $1,000,000 at the present time. This sum includes $250,000 from the T. Eaton Company, $250,000 from the Suncoast Bank and his three brothers in Montreal.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

Millions of farmers and other workers in the countries of North and South America would suffer severely if it was thought because the normal European markets for their products have been shut off by the British blockade. History reveals that human suffering always ends in strenuous protests and in discontent; and so it was feared that this discontent would result in general strikes brought to bear upon Great Britain to ease the blockade against Nazi controlled Europe, and perhaps even to conclude a compromise peace with Hitler.

Fortunately for all, the United States, with foresight and generosity, has stepped into the breach and has made available to the various nations of the North and South American Continents, a loan of five hundred million dollars with which to purchase and to hold the products of their farmers and others whose European markets have been temporarily lost. Fifty million dollars of this amount, it is thought by some, may even be available to Canada for the holding of our own wheat.

This timely action on the part of the United States will probably be found to be as effective in helping to preserve democracy as was the recent transfer of fifty U.S. destroyers to the British Navy.

program, Gleichien branch, will begin its 1940 program this evening starting at 7 p.m. sharp. The girls and women, young and old, of Gleichien are invited to gather at the Gym Hall for an informal gathering and Miss Lehner hopes that every woman in Gleichien and surrounding districts will be on hand and learn just what is in store for the coming winter.

It is planned to have a real class with the co-operation of all in the district, this training can prove to be the best entertainment for the long winter ahead—no mention the benefits derived.

THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

Claiming that all interested persons and groups except packing houses had protested against new hog carcass grading regulations which became effective Sept. 20, Hon. D. B. Aulien has in turn protested to Ottawa. "If this action is not cancelled it will discourage hog raising and intensify the bitter distrust which place their hogs on the packers' doorstep," he informed Hon. J. G. Gardiner.

What amounts to a free title on the first five bushels of wheat has been granted the farmer by the province under terms of an order-in-council passed last week. The order gives priority of claim to harvest and threshing, including labor charges, and it will be validated at the next session of the legislature. All statutory claims are given second place by the new order, which has won approval from various bodies and from Hon. James G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture.

Edmonton Chamber of Commerce according to John Blue, secretary-manager, is opposed to the observance of Remembrance Day this year, and is seeking the views of boards of trade across Canada in the hope of having the customary observances cancelled. All energies should be concentrated on winning the war, said Blue, who pointed out that Thanksgiving is close to the armistice celebrations in any case.

Alberta created new health records during the present year, according to Dr. M. R. Bow, deputy minister of health. Only three cases of typhoid and two of paratyphoid were recorded, compared with 60 to 1,000 yearly twenty years ago. In those days death ranged from 60 to 100 annually from these diseases. No cases of infantile paralysis were recorded, and infantile deaths dropped to a new low both for one month old and under class and those twelve months and under. Alberta had the second lowest infantile death rate, British Columbia having the lowest.

Alberta pensions Association, a nationwide organization for the furtherance of old age pensions, will have an Edmonton branch. It was stated by E. C. Fisher. The movement is still in the growing stage, but well established in British Columbia, said the local vice-chairman. He said also that the Alberta organization will operate on a broader basis than the parent body but the main objectives will be pensions for all at 65 with a minimum of $30 a month.

PARTICULARS OF EQUIPMENT AT TRAINING CENTERS

The men reporting for training at militia training centers, will be issued with complete Battle dress the same as issued to units of the C. A. S. P. And in great coats, socks, gloves, overboots, underwear, boots and shirts.

When a man has completed his period of training, he will be allowed to retain his underwear, socks, antio, but will be required to produce his boots if he should be called back for a further period of training at a later date.

Small articles of kit, will not be issued by the training centers. It will therefore be necessary for a recruit to bring with him such articles as: braces, boot brush, hair brush, tooth brush, shaving kit, comb and soap, and any other articles of this nature that he may require.

Blankets will be the only bedding issued at the training centers. Sports will also be engaged in extensively during the training period and it is suggested that running shoes, and depending on the season sports equipment that the man may have brought, such as skates, men who can play musical instruments should bring them along, as that they may take part in concerts.

SMOKE BOMBS OR "SMOKERS' CARELESSNESS"

Fire prevention week is next week—October 12-18. In these war days, we read frequently of this use of smoke bombs. They are mainly employed to hide the movements of one army or navy from the opposing army or navy in Canada, smoke rises in clouds every day from fires started by people who attempt to hide behind the smoke screen but like the enemy is eventually cancelled. We call him (or her) the careless smoker. He is the fifth columnist in the fight against fire and his number is legion. It is not hard to substantiate this claim for in the reports of the Dominion Fire Commissioner, it is seen that nearly 14,000 fires were caused by careless smokers in Canada in 1939. Involvement in loss of over $2,000,000. Most fires from this cause originate in dwellings, but frequently they burn in factories, stores, warehouses and other mercantile occupancies in such cases the loss is often very high. For instance, a gas fire in one of our great ocean ports, which was attributed to the careless disposal of a cigarette, caused a loss of $750,000.

A dangerous habit indulged in by many smokers is that of smoking in bed. The press carries almost daily accounts of the results of this vicious habit. Drowsiness soon overcomes the smoker and he falls asleep. But his lighted cigarette does not sleep and is a smouldering of the bed covers and the sleeper stands a very good chance of being asphyxiated or burned to death. Do your smoking before retiring and leave smoking. Above all, be sure that your cigarette is out before throwing away, settle back, match, pipe and pipe.

W. Busby of the Blackfoot gardeners held the record for big spuds for a couple of days until Mrs. Thos. Plante came along and handed over to Harrys Store for window display a spud from her garden which tipped the scale at 4 pounds 7 ozs. Mr. Ramsey says Mrs. Plante's tubers are a lot of interest and at the time of writing no one had been able to show a bigger one. Mr. Busby's spuds weighed two and a half pounds each.

T. Miller an inmate of Eventide Home died Saturday at the age of 68 years. Deceased was born in Scotland and came to Canada about twenty years ago and followed his occupation as a butcher retiring in 1928. He came to Gleichien from Calgary and had been a resident at the home for the past three years. Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock with Major J. Sutherland and other officers of the Salvation Army officiating after which internment was made in Eventide cemetery.

Some forty soldiers of the district who were at Sarcee Camp training for the past couple of weeks, returned home Monday night by special train. Aboard the train were men from all along the line to Medicine Hat. A large number of townpeople gathered at the station to welcome the boys home. They all look much better for their outing and a lot of them state they enjoyed camp life and wish they could have stayed longer. While in Calgary several of the lads made an effort to join the air force and so far we know of only one, Campbell Evans, who passed the stiff examinations. He will be called up at a later date.

The PERFECT Chewing Tobacco

A Healthful Sign

One of the most heartening and inspirational stories appearing recently in the daily press is that of the organization and operation of the Pierceland Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Cooperative Association, the first of its kind in Saskatchewan, perhaps the first on the prairies.

The story is heartening because it demonstrates that it is possible for whole communities to organize a practical effort to place themselves on a self-sustaining, or more nearly self-sustaining basis, and it is inspirational because it may pave the way for other communities to improve their lot, either in the same manner as the people of the Pierceland district, or in some other direction.

While the scene of this experiment, for it is yet hardly beyond the experimental stage being in its first year, is laid in northwestern Saskatchewan near the Alberta boundary, indeed, anywhere that vegetables and fruit will grow.

Finding the raising of wheat a somewhat uncertain form of production, the people of the Pierceland district organized to set up a co-operative canning plant in May of this year. Capitalizing on the fact that the district could grow vegetables and small fruits to perfection and that wild fruits also grew in profusion, a canning factory was set up to can the produce of the gardens and the bush.

Wise in their generation, the people of the Pierceland district sought all the information they could before launching their experiment. They secured the assistance of the provincial department of agriculture as to the best methods of organizing, and called on their nearest Dominion experimental farm staff for demonstrations of the canning process. The necessary equipment was purchased and in the fall quantities of produce were processed, canned and marketed.

Helping Themselves

Of particular interest is the modus operandi, as outlined by B. N. Arnason, of the Co-operation and Markets Branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture: "The association furnishes the cans, the milk, sugar, syrup and other supplies. The growers take their fruit and vegetables to the canning plant, can their produce under supervision and take one half of the canned produce home with them. The association retains the other half for resale to meet operating expenses and to pay for the equipment. Any surplus will be distributed on a patronage basis. There will be some variation from the above procedure depending on the quantity which the growers takes to the plant, but in general the 50-50 basis is used."

"The object is to observe all standard requirements as to quality canning methods so that no difficulty will be experienced with regard to sale. To date most of the products have been disposed of in nearby towns. The products canned have been chiefly corn, peas, beans, cauliflower, carrots and several varieties of wild fruits."

A Beneficial Project

A self-help project of this nature will serve to confer many benefits upon those who participate in it, perhaps to an even greater extent than those who sponsored it may be aware at the present time. These advantages are both material and moral.

One of the material benefits of such an undertaking, and the one immediately obvious, of course, is the financial return which the sale of the processed product brings the co-operators. Not only do they reap a direct cash return, but there is also an indirect cash benefit, inasmuch as the canned commodities retained by the participants save a cash outlay for vegetables and fruits during the late winter and spring months, by which time unprocessed home-grown produce would have perished.

Another material advantage is the fact that factory canning with proper equipment enables larger quantities of produce to be preserved under ideal conditions, resulting in less loss of it than done at home with more or less primitive equipment. Moreover, it can be taken for granted that more produce will be conserved in this manner than would be the case if each individual were to undertake the processing at home. Thus, with the abundance of fruit and vegetables usually to be found in most farm gardens, under this method, there should be an ample supply for every participant's household until next year's crops are available, and a substantial surplus for sale.

Then, too, the health value of a project of this kind, should not be overlooked. Canned vitamins in ample quantity for the household during those seasons of the year when they are not available, except at prohibitive cost, should yield dividends in better health.

Not by any means the least important is the moral value of a self-help undertaking of this or any other kind. After a decade of the pernicious effect of the direct relief system with its tendency to sap the initiative, it is refreshing to find that whole communities are still imbued with that spirit of self-reliance which urges them to fend for themselves and to knock the government proppars from under their feet at the earliest possible opportunity.

It was this spirit which enabled the pioneers of this country to play their part in building a great nation and it is this spirit which will enable us to win the war. And after the war is over, it is this spirit which will enable the people of the prairies to adjust themselves to the great changes which must inevitably come.

Wheat Exports Increase

In spite of the loss of markets in Scandinavia and the Low Countries, Canada's exports of wheat and wheat flour during the past crop year totaled 207.9 million bushels, which was the best volume exported since the 1931-32 crop year when 254 million bushels were exported. The Dominion exported the 1940-41 crop year with a carry-over of almost 301 million bushels.

Canada Has Good Bands

Orchestra Too Can Furnish Music Equal To The Best

Such is the prediction of Canadian bands and dance orchestras from the United States, according to the Toronto Daily Star, that "thousands will go to hear, and dance to, one of these who would not be interested in a Canadian band or orchestra." This can hardly be regarded as fair to the achievements of our native musicians nor accurate in its estimate of Canadian approval of Canadian bands and orchestras.

If distance lends enchantment to imported bands and orchestras, there is plenty of distance in Canada. From Halifax to Victoria the country is supplied with musical organizations with just as many miles to their credit as any from across the border. And from what we hear over the radio, Canadian communities are not lacking in their musical development.

Some criticism has been made of sending Canadian money out of the country to bring in United States bandmen and orchestras at a time when the Exchange Control Board is stressing the importance of limiting expenditures in the United States to the minimum. It could have been the chase there of the necessary war materials. If the same condition exists here, it might be worth considering whether representative Canadian bands and orchestras cannot fill all Canadian requirements—Toronto Telegram.

Building Was Shaken

But German Bombs Did Not Destroy Tussaud's Famous Museum

On a stairway in the marble lobby of a London building stood a blue-uniformed guard. Hundreds of people passed him daily. Some paused to ask questions. The guard's lips were always smiling.

The stairway led to the Tussaud Museum, where hundreds of illustrious figures, living and dead, reposed. When the German bombs fell on London, the museum was at the opposite end of the museum building, the figures trembled but survived. The Chamberlain's Horrors downstairs was unharmed.

Mme. Marie Tussaud, the museum's founder, lived through the horrors of another calamity—the French Revolution. As a girl in Paris she was taught modeling by an uncle. Becoming the sister of King Louis XVI, she lived in Versailles Palace, showed court ladies how to work in wax. When Revolution burst the mob broke up the court. Gift From Queen Elizabeth Will Be Auctioned At New York Ball

Under the patronage of the Marquis of Lichfield, British Ambassador to the United States, a Bunder for Britain ball will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on the 14th day evening, Nov. 6. The proceeds will be donated to the organization which for the last eight months has been sending medical and surgical instruments to England, woolsen clothing to enlisted men serving in the North Sea, and used clothing to British war refugees. Mrs. Wales Latham, president of Bunder for Britain and general chairman of the ball, has announced that the highlight of the event will be the auctioning of a gift donated by Queen Elizabeth of England. This is believed to be the first time that a reigning English Queen has sent a gift to America to be used for such a purpose.

Canadian Quilts

Cases Of Clothing Arriving In Britain From Canada

Cases of smart new clothes and of home-made quilts are arriving in Britain from Canada.

The clothes, most of them made by Canadian women, some of them bought, are being distributed to British refugees and any others who need them. Some were given to the Czech relief fund, some to Norwegian, some went to children rescued from the Channel Islands, who had no time to bring their own clothes.

The quilts are arriving because many Canadians in Britain wrote home describing the record-breaking cold spell of last winter. Women of Dominion want to be sure that the quilt in the fighting forces are going to be warm enough next winter. They're mostly squares of colored cloth, stitched on to a quilt of flannelette.

Style In Names

Comparison Over Last Six Years Shows A Decided Change

According to the Stratford Beacon-Herald modern parents are turning away from Biblical names for their children. In Brooklyn, anyway, such is the discovery of the chief librarian of the Brooklyn Free Library, following a survey of the juvenile registration records and a comparison of the names recently put down with those registered in the Brooklyn Directory six years ago.

According to Librarian Ferguson, former favorite names such as Nathan, Isaac, Jacob, Samuel, Nathan, Benjamin, Solomon and David have been lost out to Bernard, Herbert, Leonard, Harold, Martin and Stanley. For girls, Sarah, Ida, Martha, Rebecca, Esther, Gertrude, Bertha and Judith, once popular, have been replaced by Shirley, Marie, Gloria, Ann, Grace, Sylvia, Doris and Jean. The rise of the name Shirley from comparative obscurity to sixth place this year was accounted for by the popularity of Shirley Temple in the movie world.

Six years ago John was No. 1 name for boys, but now it is in second place, with Joseph as "tops." William, the good old stand-by, has dropped from third to seventh slot among the first ten favorites. On the other hand, Charles has climbed from six to fourth notch, and George from tenth to eighth. James has proved stable, being still in eighth place.

The survey showed that some names appeal to certain religious groups, while others appear to be equally popular with all denominations. Among the latter names are Anne, Anna, Arthur, Charles, Daniel, Dorothy, Florence, Harold, Mary, Robert and William.

Usually Miss Their Target

Canadian Sailors Say Nazi Bombers Have Very Poor Aim

Nazi bombers have poor aim in the opinion of the Canadians serving on H.M.C.S. Skeena, one of the destroyers, naval service headquarters disclosed.

Recently the Skeena was escorting a convoy of merchant ships which was attacked by German bombers about midnight. Although it was estimated more than 100 bombs were dropped, not one hit was scored on the ships in the convoy.

One sailor on the deck of the Skeena had a box of matches and set a match aside every time a bomb exploded. When the action was over he had a pile of 75 matches and officers estimated at least 20 to 25 per cent. of the bombs dropped did not explode.

No Argument

Three little boys are boasting of the abilities of their respective fathers.

Said one: "My father's a musician, and when he composes a song, he gets 75 for it."

"That's nothing," said the second.

"My father's a writer," he boasted, "and he writes an article, he gets $10 for it."

"Well," said the third boy, "my father's a minister, and when he preaches a sermon it takes ten men to carry the money up to him."

Beaver Preserve

Tract Set Aside At The Mouth Of The Mackenzie River

Scarcely of beaver in the Mackenzie River Delta area last prompted the Federal Department of Mines and Resources to establish a huge beaver preserve at the mouth of the Mackenzie River. This restoration project is being undertaken for the benefit of the native population of the Arctic coast region, who depend largely upon the fur resources for a livelihood.

The new sanctuary embraces approximately 14,000 square miles, and the regulations governing it provide that the hunting, trapping, taking, killing, shooting at, wounding, injuring or molesting of beaver is prohibited at all times.

When the beaver population of the area has increased sufficiently to warrant trapping, authority may be granted to issue special permits to trap beaver within the preserve.

Protein Content Of Wheat

Average For Western Canada Slightly Lower This Year

Average protein content of western Canada wheat will be slightly reduced this year, the federal grain commissioners' laboratory predicted following a survey of 3,154 samples of 1940 wheat.

Although the average content for samples already tested is 14.3 per cent., compared with an average of 14 per cent. for the crops of the last 10 years, laboratory officials said that as more samples are received from northern areas, where the content is normally lower, the average would be reduced. Most samples already tested came from southern and central districts where threshing is well advanced.

Number of samples tested and average protein levels for each province were: Manitoba, 615, 14.4 per cent.; Saskatchewan, 1,785, 14.4 per cent.; Alberta, 764, 13.8 per cent. The values were within .1 per cent. of those for 1939.

Largest area of high protein when occurred in southwestern Saskatchewan and west-central Manitoba. Wheat from southwest Saskatchewan, normally high in protein content, was lower than average.

Always Helps Himself

Hittler Does Not Depend Entirely On Help Of Stars

The Royal Gazette, Hamilton, Bermuda, says:

This is one mistake we must positively not make—that is, of over-estimating Herr Hitler's dependency upon stars and underestimating his preparations to co-operate with them. The superstition-ridden little beast firmly believes that the stars, his stars, are going to help him, but he is not going to let that stand in his way. He is helping himself, and he has proved himself to be an indefatigable self-helper. Laugh as you will, but he is helping himself, but do not be convinced to the point of dropping your guard. That would be to help Hitler and his stars, and you may be sure that he and his fellow star addicts are quite aware of it. A fanatic is always a deposit, and a fanaticism is no laughing matter.

Has Always Been Regarded As Paragon of English Gothic

For more than two hundred years the dome of St. Paul's has floated serenely above the roofs of London. It has been many times the target of generations of men. To some it has meant enduring strength; to others, who have seen it bathed in moonlight, soaring so lightly over the steeples near by, it has been a miracle of grace. To all in London it has been personal that any church in the world. It was called the parish church of the Empire, because Londoners turned to it instinctively at deeply felt moments of national joy or sorrow. Streams of history flowed down its aisles; the tombs of heroes of Nelson and Kitchener and Lawrence of Arabia, lay in its keeping. What the Campanile is to Venice or St. Peter's to Rome, St. Paul's has been to London. It dominated the city's skyline from the river, from the huddled streets around it. From the distant hills on North and South Londoners loved it so much that they felt, sometimes, it might not always be there. Nearly a hundred years ago Macaulay was taking of the New Zealand of the future who would stand on London Bridge and see the ruins of St. Paul's.

The Barie Mawer doll was made in Toronto and dressed in typical dress fashion with kappe and print dress. (South African-Dutch costume).

Terror As Supplied By Nazis Does Not Terrorize Britons

One of Marshal Goering's associates, telling the Associated Press in Berlin that the Nazis here are about to dump 10,000 plane loads of bombs a day on London, rather than admit that "the British are already licked but don't know it." What odd quirk of the mind could have led the Nazi propagandist himself to repeat what has for generations been one of Britain's proudest boasts? The British inability to grasp the fact that he is beaten is proverbial; and the brightest pages of British history are those recording the occasions—the many, many occasions—on which the British were licked, but did not know it. If it is another one, it does not augur too well for the success of Her Hitler's redistribution of the world. Is it too fanciful to suggest that the Marshall's mouthpiece was revealing his own subconscious uneasiness concerning an adversary endowed with that peculiar quality? Even 10,000 bomb loads a day are not of much help against an enemy too obtuse to understand that he has been defeated; and of what avail would he even double or triple the number if they failed to convince the recipients of the fact? It is possible that force is not, after all, supreme. That there are people who, though they can be killed with 1,000-pound bombs, cannot be taught by that means to surrender? The idea can be no other than a disturbing one in high quarters of the go-aster; and the disturbance is perhaps reflected in the terror propaganda—including talk about sending 10,000 bombs a day over London, which is technically nonsensical—with which the Nazis are now so badly trying to enhance the effect of the actual terror on the ground. But what good is terror if it doesn't terrorize?—New York Her Tribune.

Occupancy Commission In The Strength For Freedom

The motto of the Royal Air Force and of our own R.C.A.F. "Per Ardua ad Astra" (by toil to glory), sums up as no other words could do the true nature of their work and its real place in the present struggle for freedom. There is no form of conflict on foot, no campaign of attrition, no incessantly and continuously for endurance, quick thinking, and lightning decisions. This may be said to be the essence of the struggle for freedom. The navy is doing its work silently but with superb efficiency, the full tale of which has yet to be told. The Empire's fighting men have proved their metal again and again and will, we know, be equal to all demands made upon them, however great, when their turn comes. Only today it is the air men who hold the line and who are the cynosure of a watching and an admiring world.—Montreal Star.

Workers Being Trained

Ernest Berwin, British minister for labor, told a luncheon gathering the "hard core" of unemployment has been reduced to well below 100,000 and added it will not be long before government training centres will be graduating between 250,000 and 300,000 trained munitions workers annually.

Learn Rules for Bridal Party

"A perfect wedding" you want everyone to say of your bride. And, formal or simple, it will be perfect if you are informed on details of doing the right thing for yourself and your bride.

You, the bride, are the star of the wedding drama, and your attire sets the key. If you wear a formal gown and veil, and your hair is cut away or, if the ceremony's in the evening, they wear tails and white ties.

When the great day arrives, ushers are on hand on hand before the ceremony. They seat the bride's family on the left of the aisle, the groom's on the right. To a woman guest, an usher offers his right arm.

Then comes the moment when you arrive—and until the going away all eyes are on you. At the reception you receive with the bride party your mother, best man, and your groom and the groom receive alone. You cut the cake and you and the groom share the first slice.

What are the bridesmaids' duties? Here are many hints to correct all errors in wedding. Give elegant, dress for the bride party, guests. Laid out especially for the bride's family, guests of the groom.

Hitler Spoke For Himself

The Ottawa Journal says Hitler, so the story goes, some time ago proposed to London through a neutral quarter that in air raids each country should respect the heads of the other state. London replied that in Britain neither King nor Prime Minister enjoyed special privileges, that they would take their chances with the people. Perhaps this is the explanation of the bomb dropped on Buckingham Palace.

Town & District

Harvest operations in the district has been making slow progress due to the fact that there is so much rain in the morning. As a rule it is late in the morning before combines are put into operation. It is estimated that at least half of the grain has been harvested in the district.

After living in Gleichen for many years Mr. and Mrs. P. Downey left Sunday for High River where they will in future reside. Mr. Downey has for years been road master with the C.P.R. and was recently retired. On several occasions in recent weeks both Mr. and Mrs. Downey have been entertained by their friends.

CALLING UP 45,000 FOR TRAINING

In less than thirty days after undertaking the tremendous task of national registration, the Canadian government is utilizing the information obtained, and the mailing of notices to the first group of some 45,000 single and childless widowers who have been called for military training by Proclamation of the Governor in Council, is now underway.

These notices instruct the recipients to visit a doctor and submit to a medical examination within a clear three days of notice and, if found to be fit, a second notice will be sent to report to an indicated military training center under the Department of National Defence for a period of thirty days.

An official announcement of this remarkable achievement, which reflects the ever accelerating tempo of Canada's war effort, came from Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services. Mr. Gardiner, whose department has been working day and night setting up the necessary machinery to assure speedy and efficient operation of the training plan, outlined a few of the many preparations made.

The services of all qualified medical practitioners throughout the Dominion have been enlisted by Mr. Gardiner so that there will be no delay in determining the physical fitness of the men called upon. Under this plan, there will be a line-up of waiting applicants. Men may visit their own or any conveniently located physician. Doctors have received detailed instructions concerning the physical standards set by the Canadian Active Service Force and for the Non-Permanent Active Militia.

During the medical examination men will be called upon to state whether they have ever suffered from such disorders as rheumatism, tuberculosis, heart disease, stomach trouble, rupture, varicose veins, ear, eye or nasal trouble, nervous, mental or social disorders and if they have ever been rejected for military services. In his report, the examining physician will certify the man physical category.

Under the National War Services Regulations, any physician who makes an inaccurate certificate, will be guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, for imprisonment to or a fine or both. Likewise heavy penalties will be imposed on any eligible individual who, having been sent a notice of call, fails to report for a medical examination. It is the aim of the Minister and his deputy, Major General L. R. La Plante, who is responsible for the execution of the plan, that the selection of the men shall be scrupulously impartial.

With the convenience of applicants in mind as well as speedy efficiency, Canada has been divided into 13 administrative divisions, each with a board comprising a judge, a doctor, a man, supported by two representative citizens, and also divisional registrar who will act as secretary to the board whom any person seeking information may, and should, apply. For Alberta Hon. Horace Harvey, Chief Justice, chairman, and J. P. McLean, Minister, is registrar.

All medical reports will be submitted to the divisional registrars while any appeals or controversial issues which may arise will be directed to the divisional board through the registrar.

The first group to be called for training, 30,000 men, will proceed to training centers first October 9th.
